We tend to love as did our mother Cloth or wire or any other...

-- H. Harlow

"Never hug and kiss them, never let them sit on your lap. The end result is a happy child. Free as air, because he has mastered the stupidly simple demands society makes upon him."

Psychologists know best, of course, and in the 1950s they warned parents about the dangers of too much love. Besides...what was "love," anyway?

When scientist Harry Harlow began his experiments on mother love, he was more than just an outsider trying to make his name.

He was also an unhappy man who knew in his gut the truth about what love, and its absence, meant...

...and set about to prove it.

His experiments and their stark results shocked the world.

Also in this series on the science of the unscientific: Levitation, a story of stage magic and the physics and psychology of deception by Jim Ottaviani and Janine Johnston.
